The name arrives third

Linus Carl Pauling already had two unshared Nobel Prizes when he wrote, in 1968, that the mind might need the right molecules in the right amounts — substances the body already knows. He called that orthomolecular. Klenner had put C in the vein twenty years earlier. Hoffer had already fed the ward. Pauling made the field speakable in a journal the ship could not ignore.

He pointed back to Klenner. He worked with Ewan Cameron on ascorbate given by vein, then by mouth. Later oral trials did not repeat that route. Hold both rooms. A 1976 observational study is not a 2024 proof. Public teaching on this page stays Metabolic Correction. His word is history, used once.

The chemist and the day

His layer	Not this page
A name so the work could be spoken.	Our public brand. A sixth pillar.
C taken seriously. The vein named.	A cancer cure. A dose we sell.
He lived the molecule he taught.	A guarantee you will see 93.
Correction remains the how — #52.	Oral trials that forgot the vein, treated as the last word.

What the layer taught

A molecule already in you can still be the missing amount. That is not MEGA-ATP. That is not Eat replaced by a gram count. Gonzalez ran to a Cameron–Pauling paper as a teenager. The clinic that kept the vein is next.

How you keep it

Keep Eat. Keep Correction. Do not stop a medicine because two Nobels stood behind a vitamin. If a question is a bag in your own arm, take it to someone licensed who knows that vein.

Be brave enough to use the name without making it the product

You are not behind if you never read the 1968 paper. You are not too late. Your mills are still minting every second of every day. Feed them. The name is a door. It is not Tuesday.

The question

Will you honor the name — and still keep Metabolic Correction as the how? The answer is yours. You can take it. You can leave it. No one can take it for you.

If you take it, keep tonight’s five. That is Pauling, kept as the name — not as a bottle with a Nobel on the label.

If you want to keep learning, keep flowing with our Currents. Hugh D. Riordan is next.

Notes

- This is education. It does not diagnose, treat, or claim to cure. It does not say Pauling or Cameron proved a cancer cure.
- It does not replace your physician, your medications, or the care you already have.
- If a question is about your own body or intravenous ascorbate, take it to a licensed professional who knows that vein. G6PD deficiency and significant kidney insufficiency are hard stops.
- The Foundation does not sell C, IVs, or the word orthomolecular as a product. Public language stays Metabolic Correction. His word appears here as history.
